

Arson Canine Training Scholarship Application

Funded by State Farm Insurance Companies®

General information:

Each year, billions of dollars worth of property and hundreds of lives are lost as a result of fires set by arsonists.

State Farm® has been a sponsor of the program since 1993 and works in conjunction with Maine Specialty Dogs and the Maine Criminal Justice Academy to train ten canines and handlers a year. Over 200 teams have been placed in departments and law enforcement agencies throughout the U.S. and Canada.

State or local governmental agencies responsible for arson/fire investigations may apply for participation in the program. All applications are reviewed to determine eligibility and suitability to handle arson dogs.

Once eligibility is determined, accepted applicants will be notified of the dates for the five-week training program. The application deadline for next year's class is August 1st. The application review process will be completed by October 31st. All applicants will be notified by November 30th if they have been selected for the program. There are two, five-week training sessions conducted annually. One in April and May and one in August and September.

Training and certification:

The training is conducted by Maine Specialty Dogs located in Gray, Maine. Maine Specialty Dogs develops the curriculum and oversees all training and instruction for the program. The highly intensive five-week course includes classroom instruction, fire scene investigation, as well as various physically demanding training exercises. The canines are trained to work around physical obstacles and discriminate scents of various accelerants used to set fires during the intensive training.

At the end of the five-week course, the teams are evaluated by the Maine Criminal Justice Academy and a chemist certifies that each canine is capable of discriminating a variety of scents from substances used to start fires. This certification is crucial because the evidence uncovered by the canine and handler may become a key point in subsequent criminal and civil trials. A five-year commitment by the department to the program is required.

After completing the initial five-week training, the canine and the handler become a team. Each team must recertify annually at one of the recertification locations. If the canine is not recertified yearly or the department doesn't complete the five year commitment, the canine will be returned to the program or retired to the agency/handler. This decision will be made by Maine Specialty Dogs.

Scholarship information:

State Farm underwrites the program due to the problem of arson in our society. Arson dogs provide an invaluable tool for law enforcement officials to combat the costly and deadly crime of arson.

State Farm pays for:

- The canine,
- Training fees,
- Room and board during training,
- Certification by chemist and evaluation by the Maine Criminal Justice Academy and
- Reimbursement of transportation for the initial five-week class.
